Have a corner 47x120 feet improved with a good building within a stone's throw of the 12-story Mills building which I will sell now for $20,000 and make terms. This property is easily worth $25,000 today and in 5 years ought to sell for $50,000, for corners in the down town district are scarce articles at any price. There are only a few of them that you can buy at all. Get busy on this; don't wait until the other fellow has bought and then come around and say I wish I had known it was for sale.

RESOLUTIONS ON DEATH OF EX-CHIEF

The Firemen Adopt Suitable Memorial for the Late J. E. House.

Resolutions were adopted at the regular quarterly meeting of the El Paso fire department at the Central fire station Thursday night, on the death of J. E. House, ex-chief. A letter of condolence from J. Ed. Schwartz, of Dallas, Tex., recording secretary of the State Firemen's association, was also read. In his letter, Mr. Schwartz said that J. E. House, who was vice president of the state organization at the time of his death, would have been elected president if El Paso had remained in the organization.

Secretary Zell Helm further stated that he had requested that the name of House be placed on the memorial roll for 1910. C. C. Kiefer, T. J. Hollana and F. S. Ainsa presented the resolutions for the El Paso fire department.

When the meeting was called to order there were only 19 members present and the question was raised by president C. W. Fasset as to whether or not that would constitute a quorum. J. E. House said that as each company now consisted of only 20 members, he thought 19 should constitute a quorum for a department meeting. E. E. Kogmeier seconded the motion, which carried by unanimous vote, and the meeting proceeded with the calling of the roll.

After the calling of the roll, E. E. Kogmeier asked for the names of the officers of Sunset company and was notified by Gus Trost that there had been no changes in the officers of that company.

C. C. Kiefer then made a motion that the names of the Sunset company be placed on the roll.

Bills for the bunting used on the Central fire station Thursday were ordered paid.

On motion of Dave Sullivan, the secretary was instructed to write a letter of thanks to the officers of Sunset company for their work in reorganizing that company. He also made a motion that a vote of thanks be extended fire chief W. W. Armstrong for turning out with the apparatus for the House funeral and also that a similar vote be extended J. T. Sullivan and the other firemen who draped the central fire station.

F. Robinson had taken Frank and John, the two retired fire horses, to his ranch in New Mexico, where they will be cared for during the balance of their lives. On motion of Fred Kiefer, a vote of thanks was ordered extended to the mayor for his action in the premises.

Those who attended the department meeting Thursday night were: C. W. Fasset, Zell Helm, Dave Sullivan, Fred Kiefer, C. C. Kiefer, E. E. Kogmeier, J. B. Badger, George Trost, Gus Trost, Henry Trost, Joe Stelskal, Alce, Ainsa, Frank Ainsa, Ben Levy, W. W. Pickrell, Ed. Kneezell, Dave Andrews, T. J. Holland, J. B. Binkley, J. W. Lorentzen, Adolph Trost, G. C. Tatum, C. J. Mundell, J. T. Brink, H. G. Van Hise, J. R. Salas, James Irvin, Sam Robinson, L. L. Ledford, C. A. Brann.

SAN DIEGO

As An Investment:

It would be difficult to find a proposition equaling San Diego real estate. A pair of timely-purchased building lots, favorably located, has frequently been the foundation of a young man's financial success and has bettered the status of the more mature.

The incursion of homeseekers into Southern California exceeds 100,000 per annum, the larger portion of whom come seeking congenial climatic condition.

The climate of San Diego, which is peculiarly local, is nearer perfection than that of any other inhabited part of the world.

Three epoch making events that are revolutionizing the map, and attracting the world San Diego-ward at the present time are:

The Panama Canal now nearing completion, from which San Diego, the nearest American port, shall undoubtedly derive a maximum of benefit.

The San Diego & Arizona Railway, to be completed in 1912, and which forms the connecting link between San Diego, and the trunk lines of the great Southwest. This means much to El Paso.

The Panama California Exposition, which is to be held at San Diego in 1915, in celebration of the opening of the great waterway which is to make San Diego the most important seaport on the Pacific.

We offer you exceptional opportunities for proper investment, and on terms that won't cramp your pocket-book, but which will make your investment a pleasure to you because of the ease with which you can make your payments. Your money will grow an hundred fold, for San Diego is, without exception, the most favored city on the Pacific coast.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Howard Jeffries marries waitress while at college and is disinherited by rich father. Stepmother visits apartments of her old flame, Robert Underwood, to try to prevent him ending his life when pressed by creditors. Howard, visiting Underwood, a former college-mate, seeking a loan, is asleep in the apartments during the interview and as stepmother leaves, Underwood shoots himself. Howard awakens and is arrested and, by police third degree methods, is made to confess to the crime. His wife seeks aid of his family. Goes to see husband at prison. He tells her he is not guilty.

"She is coming to my house of her own free will. She has trusted to my honor—"

"Yes—yes!" cried Annie. "She trusts to your honor, judge." Capt. Clinton grinned.

"Honor cuts mighty little ice in this matter. There's no use talking. I shall place her under arrest."

"I will not permit such a disgraceful proceeding!" cried the lawyer.

"With all due respect, judge," retorted the policeman impudently, "you won't be consulted. You have declared yourself counsel for the man who has been indicted for murder—I didn't ask you to take me into your confidence—you invited me here, treated me to a lecture on psychology, for which I thank you very much, but I don't feel that I need any further instruction. If this woman ever does get here, the moment she leaves the house Maloney has instructions to arrest her, but I guess we needn't worry. She has probably forgotten her appointment. Some people are very careless in that respect." Moving toward the door, he added: "Well, if it's all the same to you, I'll wait downstairs. Good-night."

He went out, his hat impudently tilted back on his head, a sneer on his lips. The banker turned to the judge.

"I told you how it would be," he said scornfully. "A flash in the pan!" The lawyer looked askance at Annie.

"You are sure she will come?" he asked.

"Yes, I am sure!" With concern she added: "But the disgrace of arrest! It will kill her! Oh, judge, don't let them arrest her!"

"Tell me who she is!" commanded the lawyer sternly.

It was the first time he had spoken to her harshly and Annie, to her dismay, thought she detected a note of doubt in his voice. Looking toward the banker, she replied:

"I can't tell you just now—she'll be here soon—"

"Tell me now—I insist," said the lawyer with growing impatience.

"Please—please don't ask me!" she pleaded.

Mr. Jeffries made an angry gesture.

"As I told you, Brewster, her whole story is a fabrication trumped up for some purpose—God knows what, object she has in deceiving us! I only know that I warned you what you always may expect from people of her class."

The judge said nothing for a moment. Then quietly he whispered to the banker:

"Go into my study for a few moments, will you, Jeffries?"

The banker made a gesture, as if utterly disgusted with the whole business.

"I am going home," he said testily.

"I've had a most painful evening—most painful. Let me know the result of your investigation as soon as possible. Good night. Don't disturb me to-night, Brewster. To-morrow will do."

He left the room in high dudgeon, banging the door behind him. Annie burst into a laugh.

"Don't disturb him!" she mimicked. "He's going to get all that's coming to him."

Shocked at her levity, the lawyer turned on her severely.

"Do you want me to lose all faith in you?" he asked sternly.

"No, indeed," she answered contritely.

"Then tell me," he demanded, "why do you conceal this woman's name from me?"

"Because I don't want to be the one to expose her. She shall tell you herself."

"That's all very well," he replied, "but meantime you are directing suspicion against yourself. Your father-in-law believes you are the woman; so does Capt. Clinton."

"The captain suspects everybody," she laughed. "It's his business to suspect. As long as you don't believe that I visited Underwood that night—"

The judge shook his head as if puzzled.

"Candidly, I don't know what to think," he said. "I want to think the very best of you, Annie, but you won't let me."

She hesitated a moment and then, quickly, she said:

"I suppose I'd better tell you and have done with it—but I don't like

She held out her hands entreatingly.

"It's not an invention! Really, judge! Just a little while longer! You've been so kind, so patient!"

There was a trace of anger in the lawyer's voice as he went on:

"I believed you implicitly. You were so positive this woman would come forward."

"She will—she will. Give me only a few minutes more!" she cried.

The lawyer looked at her as if puzzled.

"A few minutes?" he said. Again he looked at her and then shook his head resignedly. "Well, it's certainly infectious!" he exclaimed. "I believe you again."
